HITCHES NO. ONE AND 2.

Quay Wants Assurances From President Harrison.

CONFIDENT OF DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS.

People's Party Senators Will Vote With Democrats.

(From Our Regular Washington Correspondent.)

Washington, Oct. 24, 1892.
There is a hitch, in fact two hitches, in the republican program. It was expected that Senator Quay would have been in New York a week ago, to remain until the campaign ended, for the purpose of aiding Mr. Carter in the work which Mr. Harrison has necessarily been compelled to give up. But Quay did not go to New York, and just as Mr. Harrison's friends were wondering what his alleged illness meant he turned up in Washington to tell them that he would not go to New York unless he was given certain assurances by word of mouth, in the presence of at least two witnesses, from Mr.
Harrison. He was told that it would be impossible for Mr. Harrison to meet him, owing to the condition of Mrs. Harrison. He still insisted, and said he would go back home to remain until after election if these promises were not made. The meeting was then arranged and Mr. Quay had a few minutes conversation with Mr.
Harrison in the presence of three other gentlemen. Whether Mr.
Harrison made the promises demanded of him cannot be stated with any degree of certainty at this time; but if Quay turns up in New York this week, as I believe he will, it may be set down as certain that he did. So much for hitch number one.

The other hitch concerned Mr.
Blaine. The men who have for three years devoted their time and study to belittling everything done by Mr. Blaine and to showing that he was merely an humble instrument in the hands of the master statesman, Benjamin Harrison, suddenly woke up the other day to the necessity of obtaining the help in the campaign. Then a scheme was hatched up to get Mr. Blaine to seem to take an active part in the campaign, Whitelaw Reid, Pat Egan and other personal friends of Mr. Blaine being utilized to persuade him into it. The first part of the scheme is now political history; Mr. Blaine was gotten to Whitelaw Reid's house and there made a short "impromptu" speech, from carefully prepared type written copy. Having succeeded so well the scheme then decided, that Mr. Blaine must be kept in New York for the remainder of the campaign in order that the impression might go out that he was aiding the republican national committee by his advice. There is where hitch number two came in. Mr.

Blaine's Washington residence is already for the occupancy of himself and his family, and his original intention was to have returned to it the middle of last week, but he has persuaded under one or another pretext to remain in New York.
He has advised his Washington friends that he will be here early this week, but Mr. Harrison's friends are determined to keep him in New York if it can possibly be done. His whereabouts for this and next week will show whether hitch has been overcome or not.

Democratic confidence in the election of Cleveland and Stevenson and a democratic congress increases every day, just as republican fear of defeat increases. For nearly a week a local sporting man has advertised the fact that he had deposited $10,000 with a well known banking house with instructions to wager the whole or any part of it on the election of Cleveland, and that he was prepared to duplicate the amount as soon as this deposit was covered. Up to this writing not a dollar has been put against his money; no republican has sufficient courage to back his opinions with his money.

The loss of the control of the Senate in just beginning to be fully realized by the republicans. The latest democratic figures make the Senate stand after March 4, 1893, democrats 43, republicans 40, people's party 2, leaving the legislatures of Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas, which are at present controlled by the people's party, in doubt. If the people's party can retain control of these legislatures or of any one of them the number of people's party senators will be increased; but even granting what few believe to be possible that the republicans will elect a majority of the legislatures in those three states and get the Senators that would only give them a total of 43, against the same number of democrats, so that in any event the republicans are doomed to loose control of the Senate, unless they can capture the legislatures of some of the states now regarded as certainly democratic. This is very important, as it makes possible, after the election of Cleveland and Stevenson, an immediate revision of the tariff, as on that question the people's party senators will vote with the democrats, and there is little or no doubt that the next House will be democratic by a good working majority.

Mormon Polygamy Abandoned.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Arthur L. Thomas, governor of Utah, in his annual report to the secretary of the interior, says polygamy in that territory is on the decline. He does not believe any polygamous marriages have taken place during the year with the consent or permission of the Mormon leaders, and it is his conviction that there is a sincere intention on the part of the Mormon people not to approve or sanction polygamous marriages in the future.

She Baffled the Czar.

From the Chicago Evening Post.

Miss Bentley, the English magnetic girl who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Cumberland on their recent visit to Copenhagen, before the golden wedding party broke up rather surprised his Majesty of Russia by some of her experiments. He keenly watched the efforts of the Prince Royal of Greece to push to the ground a billiard cue lightly held by Miss Bentley in her hands, and with considerable sincerity he took his nephew's place after he had failed. The Czar grasped the cue with both hands and put his enormous strength into the effort to get the point of the cue to the ground. It bent and quivered, but all his Majesty's efforts, like those of his predecessor, were in vain.

But a still greater surprise was in store. He placed his hands under Miss Bentley's elbows and lifted; up went the young English girl until her hair almost touched the ceiling. Then Mr. Cumberland explained that on that occasion Miss Bentley had allowed her self to be lifted, but when his Majesty next tried he would find it impossible to move her. The Czar smiled. But the smile quickly gave way to a look of perplexity when all his efforts to lift her the hundredth part of an inch from the ground were unavailing. Still more surprised was he when Miss Bentley, lightly resting her fingers against the wall, resisted the efforts of various members of the royal party to push her against the wall.

The experiment with a chair, in which Miss Bentley, by merely placing a hand on each side of the back of the chair, with the thumbs slightly curved, lifted a person seated thereon, excited the Czar's profound attention, and he sat on the chair and was lifted. Then the Prince Royal of Greece sat upon his Majesty's knees, and up went the chair. To them were added the Crown Prince of Denmark and the Duke of Cumberland—one Emperor, two future Kings and one King in passe. Never was there so much royalty upon one single chair before.
Their collective weight was certainly not less than 60 stone. The chair was grasped by Miss Bentley as before, and up it went, Emperor, Princes and all, three or four inches from the ground. The Czar's first look was one of surprise, his second one of warm congratulation.

It was while the magnetic craze was at its height in London that Mr. Cumberland one night after dinner quite casually suggested that Miss Bentley should try and see if she were a "magnet." Some experiments were tried, and she succeeded in a truly remarkable manner. Her first actual test experiments were given a few weeks later at Mr. Labouchere's house, in Old Palace Yard. Miss Bentley is young; she is in her twenty-second year, and at her age very few, if any, succeed in getting themselves so widely known as she is. But then it is not everyone who can lift the Czar.
